

“We find beauty not in the thing itself but in the patterns of shadows, the light and the darkness, that one thing against another creates.”

Jun'ichirō Tanizaki

“Here again it will not be a matter of defining the truth of the state or of Science, of rewriting the “real story” behind the legend, but of activating questions that arise first of all from the moment in which we are living, from what it forces us to think and also from what it asks us to be wary of.”

Isabelle Stengers

“The brand of holist ecological philosophy that emphasizes that 'everything is connected to everything,' will not help us here. Rather, everything is connected to something, which is connected to something else.”

Donna Haraway

“If light is scarce then light is scarce; we will immerse ourselves in the darkness and there discover its own particular beauty.”

Jun'ichirō Tanizaki

“Indeterminacy, the unplanned nature of time, is frightening, but thinking through precarity makes evident that indeterminacy also makes life possible.”

Anna Tsing
